Description

Customer records should have a unique E-Mail registered for them. This is maintained for every Customer record added wherein the E-Mail is checked from current records if it is already registered to a Customer. But in Edit Customer Page, an E-Mail that is already used by another Customer can be registered to another user via the Edit Customer Page. This is a loop hole that must be removed since it violates the rule of registering an E-Mail to a single Customer record only.
